Introduction

The Advanced Battery Manufacturing 2027 will offer high-value networking opportunities, combining the rigor of scientific conferences with the practical relevance of industry trade shows. This event forms part of a broader relationship-building strategy, fostering ongoing dialogue and strong community engagement.

We will welcome distinguished speakers from leading industry firms, top research institutes, and academia, who will share fresh perspectives on the challenges and opportunities in advanced battery manufacturing.

The symposium will take place both in person and online, with a particular focus on industry participants, and will be hosted in the beautiful setting of a Cambridge college.

What to expect from this event

You will have the opportunity to meet key industrial leaders in battery manufacturing. It will provide you with a platform to exchange ideas, build new connections, and increase your organisation's visibility among stakeholders.

Why sponsoring

By sponsoring this event, you will increase your company's visibility among battery stakeholders. Your company will have a central stage during and after this event. We offer a variety of packages to suit any requirements.
